Redevelopment of Rodney Park Village

Rodney Park Village's three residential care facilities are currently undergoing a $18.2million redevelopment.

On completion of this redevelopment in 2020, the new facility will house 100 beds under the one roof, and be known as Mooroopna Place.

The redevelopment will see the total refurbishment of Grevillea Lodge and Boronia House and a complete rebuild and extension of Waratah Lodge – bringing the three 30 bed facilities under the one roof, and one name, with a central reception and community area.

"Like any home, an aged care facility requires upkeep and renovation if it is to provide an environment that is comfortable, welcoming and safe," CEO Kerri Rivett said.

"We want our Mooroopna residents to have the same beautifully modern, functional and comfortable home as our residents in other sites have."

Choice dictates design of community

"Our model of care that centres around choice for residents has to a large extent dictated the building design. The buildings we are designing are communities not aged care facilities. The entry replicates the community with hairdressers, consultant rooms and the gym, while the dining and lounge areas are the cafes and social meeting places. Corridors are the streets that then lead to the residents' homes- their beautifully appointed rooms," she said.

The new refurbishment will not affect the 93 Independent Living Units that are located on the Rodney Park site.

Temporary home for residents

Residents of Grevillea Lodge have been permanently relocated to Maculata Place at Tarcoola, while the Waratah Lodge and Boronia House residents are temporarily living at Hakea Lodge, Tarcoola in Shepparton.

“It is important our current residents remain part of Shepparton Villages as these residents are part of our family,” Ms Rivett said.

“We are committed to ensuring the aged in our region are cared for in homes that reflect their expectations and those of their families and our community. We’ve shown what can be achieved with meticulous planning, consultation and forethought and we can’t wait to bring that same level of quality to the redevelopments in Mooroopna.”
